WOMAN: Hey there, sorry to interrupt. I couldn't help but notice you're listening to a podcast. Obvious, I know. But that means you've got a curious mind. It means you like to learn. And who doesn't? Learning is one of the simple pleasures of life isn't it? Nothing beats that feeling of learning a new fact, a new piece of information that broadens your horizons and makes you grow as a person. Nothing also beats the feeling of using your new found knowledge to impress the cute receptionist at work, hey I won't judge. So if you like learning, then you'll love the new podcast from Pod-likely, 'Turn on the Neurons', the podcast that helps your brain grow. Whether it be learning about birds unique respiratory system, or the fascinating life of painter and feminist icon Frida Kahlo, we promise that our show will always be fun and accurate, because nothing kills the fun like misinformation. So come on, give us a chance and we promise you'll have a good time. 'Turn on the Neurons' because learning is key.

FX: PODCAST AD TRANSITION

MAN: Look, I believe in the scientific method, I've done the research, and it's just a stone-cold fact, that women will always go for the asshole. If we look at nature, with like wolfs and lions and shit, the female will always pick the alpha that takes what he wants and fights anyone who objects, and humans are the exact same. If she says no, she's just afraid of being seen as easy, just like with wolves you gotta pursue and take what you want. And just take and take and take. And if she still doesn't want you, just like a wolf, you just gotta piss on all her belongings.
